ART | PAINTING

Art, and in particular painting, has always been an integral part in the life of Stefania Veldemiri. Her studies as a conservator of archaeological finds and works of art helped her acquire all necessary technical knowledge and skills, which contributed to her growing into a talented artist exceptionally handling her tools. Conservation requires a deep knowledge of construction technologies and materials, so Stefania had the opportunity to study and work on a wide range of technologies and painting/art materials; frescoes, Byzantine icons, oils, temperas, watercolours, acrylics.

Materials / styles / forms

Her favourite materials are: oil paint and watercolours on handmade paper. While learning how to manufacture handmade cotton paper, she loved the combination of these two materials, which appeared to defy the creator and act in a strangely independent manner.

Her teaching experience in Elementary Schools significantly affected the way she presents form in her works. She integrated in them the viewpoint and raw artistic intelligence of children and learned how to use simple, almost primitive, lines, while consciously ignoring volume and perspective.

Painting and literature

Book illustration is her ultimate artistic love. At the beginning of her professional artistic career, she realised that she was mainly inspired by her readings. It is rather a reflex choice; to transform words into images and to use her words –when she is the writer of the literary texts she illustrates– as brushes that create beautiful images. She illustrates fairytales, short fiction and poetry. Her unconfessed dream: to illustrate a novel.

Painting and children

She teaches painting and history of art to children and adults, either in the form of private lessons or in small groups, in her studio or in various creative spaces for children. She has also worked as an Art Teacher in public Elementary Schools. Her teaching goal is to boost her students' self-confidence, while her greatest teaching pleasure is hearing them say while they look at a work of art: “I can paint that! It’s a piece of cake!”. Her students learn all fundamental drawing and painting techniques, because if you don’t learn how to master the basics, you cannot be a painter; if you don’t know the rules, you cannot convince anyone that you are entitled to break them!

Her professional experience as an artist is unfolded in a more formal way here.

COLOUR IN SCHOOLS

While working as an Art teacher in various public Elementary Schools, Stefania Veldemiri discovered how colourless and often ugly the school environment is in Greece today. Her wish to change this reality and create colourful and bright oases in the schools located in the wider area of the city of Thessaloniki, lead her to integrate into her classes wall painting projects, as well as to voluntarily offer to paint the walls of schools where she did not teach. Working together with her students and starting from their own random brush strokes, she responded to their need –which was more than obvious to her– to learn to love their school environment through painting its empty walls, yards, classrooms. Lots of colour, interesting shapes and forms, magic forests, strange-looking cities and villages, moons and birds, magic umbrellas and deep-blue seas were the motifs she chose to depict.

Her goal was for her students to experience how aesthetics and art can be part of our everyday life, how fantasy can actually be a part of our reality. She also wanted to boost students' self-confidence and sharpen their ability to truly and deeply observe their surroundings. This action was actually a result of her strong belief that this is how future citizens can learn to fight for their right to beauty both in their own lives and in the lives of those next to them.
